

It is now March 24th, 2009. I was not able to do the dose dense chemo - my body did not react well to it because I could not recover quickly enough. I ended up with 6 months of chemo. My gene test did come back negative. I still opted to do the bi-lateral mastectomy and reconstruction. I am right now in the stretching part of the reconstruction part. I would say the bi-lateral mastectomy was the most painful thing ever! It was harder for me than going through chemo. All in all though, I am healthy and living a great life about one year after I was diagnosed.
